

Free Stuff – is it really?

Everybody likes free stuff. Come on, admit it!, you know you do. There's a site called Free Stuff Center. You can get coupons, magazines, free samples of all manner of useful and frivolous products, and software for your computer.

We have only one caveat – 'let the buyer beware' - not all that looks free truly is free. In most cases, you get the free samples, and the company gets your name, address, and email address for their database. We're not saying that this is necessarily bad, just that you should know ahead of time and expect some spam.
